Legends:

Kevin Garnett

Garnett averaged a whopping 8.4 rebounds per game during his tenure in Boston. In his first year with Boston, he was named NBA Defensive Player of the Year, and teamed with fellow All-Stars Ray Allen and Paul Pierce to lead the Celtics to the NBA championship in 2008. Garnett helped an aging Boston team reach the NBA finals for the second time in three years during the 2009–10 season. Garnett also helped the Celtics reach the conference finals in 2011–12

Paul Pierce

Pierce finished his 15 seasons in green and white with averages of 21.8 points, 6.0 rebounds, 3.9 assists, and 1.4 steals per game. Pierce made his first All-Star appearance in his fourth campaign, during which he posted season marks of 26.1 PPG, 6.9 RPG, 3.2 APG, and 1.9 SPG. That spring of 2002, the C's made their first Eastern Conference Finals appearance since 1988 after logging a regular-season record of 49-33. He holds the record for most 3 pointers in Celtics history, along with most steals.

Ray Allen

Allen averaged 16.7 points, 3.4 rebounds and 2.7 assists per game during his time in Boston from 2007-12, while making three All-Star appearances. The NBA's second all-time leading 3-point shooter has the third-most long-distance makes (798) in Celtics history, owns both the franchise's fourth-best 3-point percentage (40.9 percent) and the fourth-best effective field-goal percentage (56.1 percent), and is the only player in team history to post a career free-throw percentage above 90 percent (minimum 200 attempts) with a 91.4 percent clip. In just half of a decade, the Hall-of-Fame shooting guard established himself as the most precise high-volume shooter in team history, while playing an integral role in bringing a 17th championship banner to Boston.
